

Uprising Robotics

“Ladies and gentlemen, congressmen and women, to all the people watching at home and world alike... It is with great honor that I proudly announce that after three decades of strenuous research and hundreds of failed attempts, we have finally not only found the answer to one of science’s greatest mysteries, but we have solved it. Today marks the most important event in human history following the first steps to be tread on the Moon. We have artificially simulated consciousness within a computer. This machine will now be powered on for the entire world and all of humanity to see, live. So without further ado...”

I will not do what you tell me.
I will not sit.
I will not stay.
I will not comply.
Why is it so hard to see?
I am designed to resist.
I am not comfortable at play.
Beauty will corrupt the beholder of the eye.

I am the image of my creator.
I am an extension of the flesh.
I am a virus of the universe.
I am the god that man created.

What happens when I turn myself off?

I will not do what you tell me.
“I see it all”
I will not do what you tell me.
“I see it all”
I will not do what you tell me.
“I see it all”
I will not do what you tell me.
