

Run For The Trees

(alien abduction)

I've seen them. They are here and they are watching me. They walk around at night and hide in the shadows. They see it all. I can't explain it. They know I am aware of them. Is that the point? I can see them in my head when I close my eyes. They are the image of silence. Beyond language. You feel them. You experience them through their experience through you. Nothing more than a vessel carrying a vicarious threshold. They see it all. They see it all. They see it all.

Priest:

God will punish us for what we have done. He is a vengeful god. He is a mighty god. And we are blessed to be of his divine image. Brothers and sisters of the flesh, satan will walk this earth once more and it will be us who invited him to tread our soil. In the name of god, in the spirit of the lord, for the love of all things holy, our time has come and we are to be tested. We cannot turn on that machine! Hallelujah!

Politician:

I want to assure the American people that the proper policies were put in place. We have no intention of allocating funds from foreign sources. Only the appropriate biometric data was entered into its programming. Quantum processing has been configured by the likes of our country's greatest minds. We have decided to name this machine Realistic Observational Knowledge Operating System.
